DRAMA MAJORS HAVE WORKSHOP

In lieu of the spring drama production, the Drama Department is sponsoring an exciting and innovative two week workshop for Gallaudet drama majors. There are twelve students this year who have selected drama as their major field of study. This is the largest group in the department's history.

Experts in the areas of set design, playwriting, drama criticism, costume and make-up for example will be making presentations during the two-week period. Several sessions will be open to the entire Gallaudet community. These are both on February 19, and are as follows:

"Role of the Critic," David Richards from the Star-News at 4 p.m.

"Arts Alliance in Educational Arts for the Handicapped," Jack Kukuk from the Kennedy Center at 7 p.m.

The workshop is taking place in the Auditorium.

AROUND AND ABOUT

--The Office of Demographic Studies held the 9th annual meeting of its National Advisory Committee on January 15 and 16, in New Orleans. The Committee, which is composed of 16 school administrators, researchers and other professionals from the field of deafness, expressed needs and priorities for data and research information during FY 1978. During the meeting the members expressed their thanks to Gallaudet College for its support of the Annual Survey of Hearing Impaired Children and Youths. This project serves as a national monitor of status and trends relating to the education of hearing impaired children and youth.

--An open meeting for faculty, staff and students to discuss the College's self-study now in process as part of planning for review by the Middle States Association to determine accreditation of our liberal arts program will be held on February 18, from 11 a.m. to 12 noon in Hall Memorial Building, room 213.

--A special program about Rock Gospel, which was produced by WETA-TV several years ago, is now in the Public Broadcasting Service Library. This means that the tape can be bought or rented by any PBS station or educational institution.

WHO IS THE FAIREST OF THEM ALL?

The third Miss Gallaudet Pageant will take place on March 6, in the Auditorium. The lucky gal who is selected for her good looks, poise and talent will participate in the Miss Deaf America Contest to be held at the NAD Convention this summer. There are 28 contestants.

STUDENTS TO ATTEND CAREER CONFERENCE

A number of Gallaudet sociology majors are planning to attend a career conference sponsored by the D.C. Sociological Society. This annual conference is held to aid students in the transition from college studies to full-time employment.

This year's lecture-discussion will be held at Howard University. Interpreters will be available.

"THE TOUCH" COMING TO GALLAUDET STAGE

The Frederick H. Hughes Memorial Theatre will present, "The Touch," a play about a deaf-blind man. The play is based on "Butterflies Are Free" and is being adapted, produced and directed by Donald Bangs. Art Roehrig, who is deaf-blind himself, will play the lead.

The play will be held on March 11, 12, 13 and 14, at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium. Opening night will be a special benefit for deaf-blind people living in the Washington area. The net proceeds from the sale of tickets will be used to purchase braille teletypewriters priced at $2400 apiece.

INTERESTED IN FILM?

If you have always been a frustrated Hollywood producer, here is your chance to show all that untapped talent. Earl Higgins is conducting a Wednesday night film class here on campus and it is open to faculty, staff and students.

Some time will be spent on film history and technical background material. There will be hands-on experience too.

The class lasts approximately two hours and meets at 7 p.m. in the TV Studio.

ON THE GREEN is published each week by the Office of Alumni and Public Relations.
